Success is managing your inventory as a profit center, rather than a necessary evil.

Increase sales, reduce inventory costs and generate growth fuel for your company

Companies have long managed replenishment by making the trade-off between customer service goals and corporate cash and profit needs.

CLARITY Replenish improves management of both by enabling companies to service customers at superior levels, while maintaining inventory levels that minimize cash requirements.

Better Buying

By managing inventory at the item and location level, CLARITY let's you focus on managing your inventory as a strategic tool, rather than a tedious bother. Our solution provides:

- Accurate, self-adjusting forecasting
- Safety Stock optimized for every item
- Better, smarter buying with orders optimized for profit
- Daily analysis of stock status to assure timely ordering
- Individual order points and order up to levels
- Economic analysis at the item, vendor and order level

CLARITY Replenish provides the kind of features that until now were reserved for only the largest companies.

CLARITY manages the specifics for thousands of items so you can focus on managing your business. Imagine managing your inventory to maximize sales, cash flow, and customer service.

Look Before You Leap

CLARITY Replenish goes beyond advanced forecasting, economics analysis, and complex safety stock calculations to assure that all of those advanced techniques can be leveraged.

The Performance management tools in CLARITY Replenish allow companies to understand the impact of maintaining or changing the level of their inventory, customer service goals, cash flow requirements and other key measures, and execute against that understanding.

Making it Happen

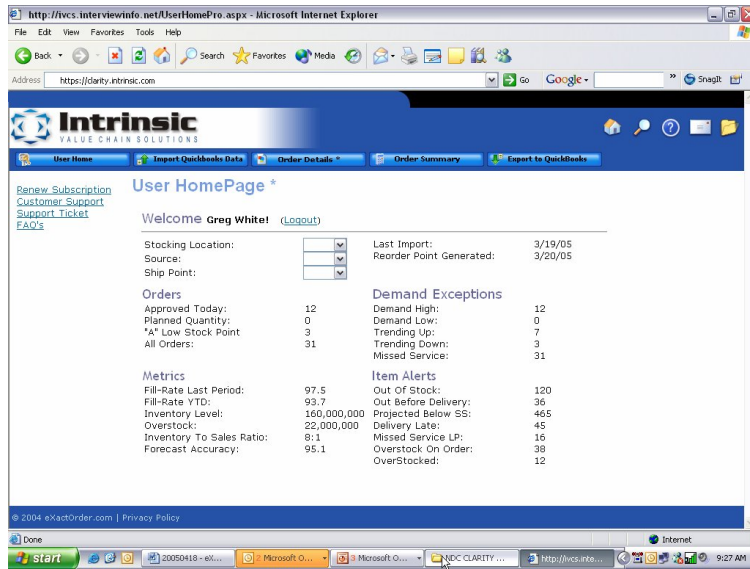

Your ROI is delivered by the people who do the work every day. By providing education, workflow support and a satisfying experience for the users, we assure that ROI is a reality for our clients.

Planners and Buyers have a job to do...we've done it ourselves. To help your people assure success, we insert profit-driven processes, and work-flow support every step of the way.

You may stock thousands of items in every location. Your people want to focus on those orders and items that are most important today. CLARITY Replenish lets buyers' focus their daily tasks by using exception management and business rules to prioritize the actions required every day. Additionally, when forecasts are updated, the system prompts buyers to focus on those items with exceptional demand to assure that you are accurately predicting customer desires. For every location, every day CLARITY Replenish:

- ✓ Tells buyers which purchase orders to place with vendors today, to assure customer satisfaction
- ✓ Identifies which orders need expediting or other action
- ✓ Points out overstock and stockouts to be reviewed and managed
- ✓ Provides performance metrics that let buyers and management identify opportunities for improvement

The user home page allows buyers to come to one place to manage their daily activities.

Throughout the system, graphics allow the users to easily identify potential issues, actions and patterns that guide their work. This system, designed by buyers for buyers really allows your people to do the work that is of the greatest benefit to you and your customers.
